

Request to : plz dedicate a communiti ...

---

v-4-virtual 64 posts since

Oct 21, 2008

Hi freinds.,

I am on vmware site since 1 month, i was not literally anything what even virtualization is, i came to vmware communities through a link prompted by the google search engine, now i know something about virtualization, i am greatly inspired by the vmware technology/virtaulization technology, for that thankx to vmware community . Now i am still preparing after that i will definitely go for VCP. My request to GURUS here is to dedcate a community to beginners so that every beginner is benefitted.

Thank U:)

Dave.Mishchenko 8,943 posts since

Nov 15, 2005 1. Re: Request to : plz dedicate a communiti to Beginners/ Freshers Nov 5, 2008 11:33 PM

Hello, I've moved your post to the VMware Communities feedback forum.

Dave Mishchenko

VMware Communities User Moderator

v-4-virtual 64 posts since

Oct 21, 2008 2. Re: Request to : plz dedicate a communiti to Beginners/ Freshers Nov 5, 2008 11:34 PM

 in response to: Dave.Mishchenko

Hi freind,

Thanx for that

RDellimagine 1,678 posts since

Jul 19, 2004 3. Re: Request to : plz dedicate a communiti to Beginners/ Freshers Nov 6, 2008 12:16 PM

Depending on what technology you are interested in, there are some good getting started documents, e.g.

A Beginner's Guide to VMware Fusion

Frequently asked questions in the VMware Server forum and Essential ESX 3.5 & VC 2.5 links.

It's difficult to have a beginners community because some are beginners in Fusion, some are beginners in ESX, some are beginners in VMware Server, so we would need to duplicate the entire communities structure for beginners, and that is too unwieldy. I would like to work with the community to build out additional getting started / FAQ guides so that people could come up to speed quickly in all product and technology areas.

Thanks, Robert

Robert Dell'Imagine, Director of VMware Communities

Request to : plz dedicate a communiti ...

tlyczko 502 posts since

Oct 20, 2005 4. Re: Request to : plz dedicate a communiti to Beginners/ Freshers Nov 17, 2008 11:11 AM

How would you define who is a beginner and who is not??

v-4-virtual 64 posts since

Oct 21, 2008 5. Re: Request to : plz dedicate a communiti to Beginners/ Freshers Nov 22, 2008 12:42 AM

 in response to: tlyczko

A person heard about vmware technology want to know more / wants to build his carrier in that feild :
like u find in redhat site a person can eveluate himself at what level he is by taking assessment tests
the idea of course modules :